

mimi Doesn't Want to Draw

Mommy goes on a trip and asks Grandma to look after Mimi.

Stackety-stack!
Stackety-stack!
As Mimi stacks them happily, Grandma feels happy, too.

Grandma makes toys out of everyday objects. She gives Mimi a box of crayons, too.

But Mimi doesn't want to draw.

Mimi likes the toys more than the crayons. She has no idea what to draw.

Splishity-splash!
Splishity-splash!
As Mimi pours happily, Grandma feels happy, too.

Squish and squeeze!
Squish and squeeze!
As Mimi happily shapes the clay, Grandma feels happy, too.

But Mimi doesn't want to draw.

But Mimi doesn't want to draw.

Mimi pours some water into the sandbox. "Wow... it's a RIVER!"

"Hmm?" Mimi is surprised to see her footprint. She makes a trail of tiny footprints... As Mimi happily makes footprints, Grandma feels happy, too.

Grandma goes with Mimi to find some leaves on the mountain...
...and pick up seashells on the seashore.

Grandma tries to keep up, huffing and puffing. Her clothes are soaked with sweat.

When Mommy comes home, it's time for Grandma to go.

She leaves a bunch of drawings she made for Mimi.

The next morning, Mimi plays some of the games Grandma taught her. And once again, Mimi doesn't draw a single picture!

But... Mimi misses Grandma so much.

Mimi uses leaves to make an artwork. Mimi uses clay to make an artwork. Mimi uses her hands to make an artwork.

Grandma looked at it, and smiled.
